Reflections on my Kalamazoo College education – Depth and Breadth in the Liberal Arts

Please reflect on your upcoming declaration of your major. How have your coursework and other learning through experience shaped your choice?

Yeah…it's late at night…or WAY too early in the morning to be working on this…but I just can't help it…having a place to dump these thoughts sure can be helpful sometimes. I wish I knew what the "right" answer was when choosing a major. The decision seems pretty huge (even though my advisor keeps telling me that it's not cast in stone and I can change my mind down the road…I just want to make the best decision possible. I love my biology classes, but I find myself getting really caught up in Chinese…and An, oh Art…what a thrill. I hope I can go to China on study abroad. Maybe I should just follow my life-long passion and major in biology like I always planned, especially after that amazing internship at Henry Ford.

So…what are your thoughts about your college experience so far?
Tell you what…dorm life rocks! I’m meeting a zillion new people, from all over the place, and learning tons just from hanging out…

Please reflect on connections you are making between your coursework and out-of-class learning experiences. I am extremely happy to have the opportunity to explore possible career paths while doing an internship this summer at Henry Ford. When I applied for the internship, I was hoping to find out if what I learned in my biology and chemistry classes might really be applicable in the “real world.” Now that I have an internship in my future, I can find out. I can’t wait!

Now that you’re back from Study Abroad, what surprised you most when you returned? When I returned from China I had to begin working on my SIP almost immediately. I was prepared for the abrupt change of pace, in part because my professors had warned me about re-entry, but I wasn’t as prepared for seeing my home country through such different eyes. And, I was surprised by how some things proceeded during my absence, while others seem like they changed little over the past year. Funny…

Though your SIP isn’t until your senior year, you have already begun developing skills in independent scholarship. What did you learn about independent scholarship in your First-Year Seminar? I can imagine that much of what I learned about writing clear and compelling arguments will serve me well in all of my scholarly endeavors. I really appreciate how thorough and insightful my FYS professor was when commenting on my essays, and I loved how prompt she was with her grading.
