Winter 2017

ACSJL Faculty Fellowship Expectations

In order to create a framework for accountability, dissemination, capacity building and visibility, ACSJL Faculty Fellows are required, with flexibility, to do the following during their fellowship:

- Participate in one Leadership Dinner during the Fellowship period in which the fellow is in conversation in front of an audience with the Academic Director about their life’s path and how the fellowship ties into their overall research and social justice goals,
- Give an academic presentation of their work to the general faculty towards the end of their fellowship period,
- Attend one ACSJL Staff Meeting each quarter during their two-year fellowship period to update staff on work progress,
- Meet with the Academic Director once each quarter to share the progress of their work,
- Serve as a regular member of the ACSJL’s Faculty Advisory Board, which meets three times a quarter. The fellow will give a progress report on their work during one meeting each quarter,
- Write one Praxis Center blog post and contribute to the resource pages (share a syllabus, a teaching assignment, a pedagogical method, etc.)
- Write a 3-5 page reflective summary of their fellowship project at the end of their fellowship period.

In addition to maintaining a department office, one of the benefits of the fellowship is shared space in the ACSJL. While fellows have flexibility in conducting their fellowship research, they are encouraged to spend time in the center and participate in ACSJL events throughout their fellowship period. Fellows should share their ACSJL and on-campus schedule with the Academic Director at the start of each quarter of the fellowship.
