Title: (Re)Encountering our Students through the Pedagogies of Solidarity

Drawing on his theoretical work on the relationship between pedagogy and solidarity as well as his many years of teaching and facilitating participatory research, Dr. Gaztambide-Fernández will invite the faculty to consider what it means to rethink our pedagogical encounters with students as encounters with difference. Highlighting the parallels between pedagogy and solidarity, this talk will be an invitation to consider how solidarity might figure in our pedagogical relationships in ways that challenge hierarchical and exclusionary practices that limit participation and undermine struggles for equity and justice in the classroom.
